Mr Allen Dulles
Central Intelligence Agency -
Washington D.C.,
Dear Mr Dulles =

(Ct a lunch eon a "cute" story pertain ing to one of our overseas representatives made me
almost physically ill,
before it made me angry enough to write - as I should (A man named [redacted] in [redacted] - speaks [redacted] and personally is admirably suit ed to his position but he's the "cute angle" attached.

His story teller said that she thought that he was using great Yankee Know how —

It seems that every two years, before returning to the states he sells furniture car etc etc ad nauseem; returns here on leave (vacation?) and buys every thing new — 5000 — except for his original outlay, he's made money hand over fist, because "Your Know how" everyone craves modern equipment and cars - and will pay any thing to get 'em" —

Example of ethical, honorable approach to life is so needed and this seems a flagrant abuse of proper attitudes of getting along -

I know that it's necessary to keep things two years before selling them - but it's the fact that, had a 2 a story on a luncheon before the story having been laced with smug pride, many many times - so how is the attitude abroad?

Sincerely, in disgust,

Gloria A. Lupus

(Mrs. A.A. Lupus)

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

25X1 TO [redacted] Assistant to the DCI

DATE: 30 AUG 1960

25X1 FROM : Chief, FE [redacted]

SUBJECT: Behavior of Americans Abroad

Re: Letter to DCI from Mrs. A. A. Dupries, 23 July 1960

Action Required: See para 3

1. The comportment of American personnel abroad has obviously had considerable impact on Mrs. Dupries. Not quite so clear is the reason behind Mrs. Dupries' selection of Mr. Dulles and the Agency as the recipients of her statement of strong concern.

25X1 2. Although [redacted] was the locale mentioned in the story repeated by Mrs. Dupries, we have been unable to identify anyone by 25X1 the name of [redacted] either surname or given name) as a person in [redacted] with this Agency. Nor have we been able to identify such an individual 25X1 outside Agency representation in [redacted]

3. We would recommend that the letter from Mrs. Dupries not be given a reply from Mr. Dulles or this Agency. Rather, it would seem preferable to refer the letter to an appropriate office (e.g., the Operations Coordinating Board secretariat, the White House staff) for an inter-agency type routine reply. Such a reply might well emphasize the personal interest of the President in this very problem, and possibly make some reference to the work of the OCB in insuring some uniformity in implementation of Executive Branch desires to utilize all available means for productive representation abroad.
